LEGAL TEST OF DRAFT HINTED IN DETROIT

Great Sweepstakes Ends After 17 Hours and 31 Minutes

SEVERAL CAPSULES DISAPPEAR

Official and Unofficial Calculations, After Drawing Is Concluded in Dim, Gray Dawn, Are That Holders of Numbers Selected After the First 1,500 or 2,000 Will Not Be Summoned Before Boards the First Year

CLOSE CHECK MADE FOR MISSING SLIPS

Washington, Oct. 30.—(P)—A legal test of the draft lottery, as a result of misplacement of six numbers out of 9,000 prepared for the drawing, was reported officially today to be under consideration in Detroit.

Clarence A. Dykstra, selective service director, said he had been appraised that six numbers had been taken by a potential Detroit draftee who was unidentified to Dykstra except that he held serial number "158" which the lottery turned into "order No. 1".

If the man finally decides to take a legal issue, Dykstra said, he will have to go through the drafting process and allow the courts to determine the issue. It was assumed, although not definitely known, that he lacked any obvious grounds for deferment.

The selective service chief declared that the lottery had been "eminently fair and accurate". "After all," he said, "this was a lottery and even the position of the last six numbers was as much pure chance as any of the others."

Discovery that the six were missing came when Brigadier General Lewis B. Henshey, assistant selective service director, lifted the last blue capsule from the great glass bowl in departmental auditorium at 5:47 a. m. EST today.

In the many days after 17 hours and 31 minutes of drawing from the big draft bowl, a last, solitary blue capsule was picked up from the glass bottom by Brigadier General Lewis B. Henshey, assistant selective service director. It was 5:47 a. m. (EST).

The capsule should have been the 9,000th—the number of capsules originally believed to be in the bowl before the drawing opened at 12:13 p. m. yesterday.

DEFENSE ISSUES ARE EMPHASIZED BY GOP NOMINEE

BY THEODORE F. KOOP
Aboard Willkie Train, En Route to Baltimore, Oct. 30.—(P)—Accusing President Roosevelt of buck-passing and "boon-doggling neglect" of American defenses, Wendell L. Willkie returned east today with the charge that a third term would endanger preparedness, and that "democracy itself may be lost."

The Republican presidential nominee is expected to devote a large part of his final campaign speeches to defense issues, which he emphasized last night in two addresses at Charleston, W. Va.

In the first, delivered to a cheering crowd which jammed the city auditorium, Willkie said that the president in recent years had "over-ruled the experts" and failed to ask for sufficient funds to build up the army and navy.

Last January, he said, Mr. Roosevelt recommended an increase of $250,000,000 in defense appropriations, whereas Congress later voted, money and contract authorizations for additional $10,000,000,000.

"Thus," the nominee added, "he was only one-fourth right." In his Charleston speech, a national radio broadcast from his private Pullman car, Willkie argued that the president "sought to place the whole blame for the accumulation of present problems upon a small group within the minority party."

HULL DENIES STORY ABOUT KEEPING JOB

Washington, Oct. 30.—(P)—Secretary Hull said today that reports that he might remain as Secretary of State if Wendell L. Willkie were elected president "were completely untrue."

The secretary of state told his press conference in response to a question that he had no knowledge of the origin of the reports.

ORDER NUMBERS FOR LOCAL MEN

Below are printed the order numbers, serial numbers, names and addresses of the first one hundred Warren county men on each of the two local draft boards who were drawn in the conscription lottery in Washington, D. C., yesterday.

Additional names will be printed tomorrow and on successive days. Because not all registration cards have been returned to local boards from out of the state there may be some slight changes in the order, but it will be practically as listed.

Official of Commercial Airlines Company Cites Need of Transport System in Wartime

Passenger Planes Just As Important in Emergency As Actual Fighting Ships, Pittsburgh Civic And Business Leaders Are Told

SUGGESTS FEDERAL AID

Pittsburgh, Oct. 30.—(P)—Jack Fiye, president of Transcontinental and Western Airlines told a group of Pittsburgh civic and business leaders last night that the government seems to be "blending itself" to the military value of its commercial airlines.

"If we fail to build up our air transport system now it will not be ready when the time comes," he said.

Fiye said in an interview that transport planes would be just as important in time of emergency.

WAR BUILDING IS DAMAGED BY ROARING BLAZE

Washington, Oct. 30.—(P)—A roaring fire at the War Department munitions building on Constitution avenue destroyed a newly built fourth floor addition during the night and did extensive damage to sections housing a mass of records, some of them secret.

Intelligence officers and fire marshals began an investigation of the cause, as soon as the massed fire equipment of the District of Columbia brought the flames under control in a struggle lasting more than an hour.

Secretary of the Navy Knox, who departs for the War Department neighborhood, said at his press conference that Secretary of War Stimson had expressed a belief the fire "unquestionably was caused by a short circuit on a cigarette."

While the investigation went on, firemen already used from their efforts at the War Department's building—a structure built in World War days as a temporary building—were called to another blaze at the Lewis hotel training school on Washington Circle.

At this fire, which was confined mostly to the basement, 15 firemen were overcome by escaping gas from the burning.

There was no official statement as to the importance of documents.

EXECUTIVE IS IN CLOSE TOUCH WITH CAPITAL

En Route with President Roosevelt Oct. 30.—(P) Building, for the 24 electoral votes of Massachusetts and Connecticut, President Roosevelt took to the rambling road again today for a train and motorcade invasion of New England, with the big program item another major election speech at the end of the trail in Boston tonight.

The chief executive left Washington after White House aides said Secretary of State Hull had advised him that the internal situation, although aggravated by Greek-Italian hostilities, permitted his absence from the capital pending further developments.

Up to that point last night the trip which calls for train platform speeches at New Haven, Conn. and Worcester, Mass., was kept on a tentative basis. Even after the decision was made that these campaign plans could be kept.

Roosevelt arranged for telephone talks on the foreign situation with Hull from Springfield, Mass., and other points along the route and to return to Washington Thursday morning.

Train stops were scheduled for Wallingford, Meriden and New Britain, Conn., and Danbury, Conn., and Springfield, Mass.

The New England tour leaves only three major speeches of the president's intensive campaign schedule. He will speak at Brooklyn Friday night, Cleveland Saturday night and from his hotel Park, N. Y., home Monday night election eve.

PRESIDENT VISITING BAY STATE

Chief Executive Travels to Massachusetts for Another of His Major Addresses in His Closing Campaign Drive, While His Opponent Wendell L. Willkie Is Speeding East Again for Short Talks in West Virginia and Maryland

SPEECHES ARE MADE IN NUMEROUS SECTIONS

BULLETIN
En Route With President Roosevelt to Boston, Oct. 30.—(P)—A major step to increase aid for Britain and her allies probably will be announced by President Roosevelt tonight in an address in Boston, a White House official indicated today.

By the Associated Press
To the old Bay State, in the past a source of perennial Democratic election strength since 1928, President Roosevelt traveled today for another of the major addresses in his closing campaign drive.

Wendell L. Willkie was speeding east again from a short midwest swing with a program that called for stops and short talks in West Virginia and Maryland followed by a major address tonight in Baltimore.

Before entering Massachusetts where 17 electoral votes are at stake, Mr. Roosevelt's itinerary included appearances in Connecticut, which has 8 electoral votes to avoid. While in that state he was to visit an aircraft factory where defense contracts are being handled.

Willkie took defense for his theme in two speeches at Charleston, W. Va., last night, charging that President Roosevelt had been guilty of "boon-doggling neglect" and "buck-passing" in providing.

EMPTY CAPSULES ARE SAVED AS SOUVENIRS

Washington, Oct. 30.—(P)—Hundreds of the bright-blue capsules which held the numbers in the national conscription lottery were carried away today for souvenirs.

But the numbers, themselves, hand-stamped on tiny slips of cardboard were vied for by big crowds holding 25 cents to become a part of the permanent selective service records in the national archives.

Men who drew numbers took the empty capsules home with them. Girl clerks who aided in drawing filled the pockets of men, slings and occasionally tossed them to nearby spectators.

Washington, Oct. 30.—(P)—John L. Lewis, the CIO leader who last week gave his support to Wendell L. Willkie for president, said today that he would not accept the secretaryship of labor in the future, it should again be tendered to me.

He made the statement in formal comment upon a radio speech by Senator Wagner (D-N.Y.) last night, which was announced as a reply to the speech in which Lewis announced for Willkie and gave election eve.

Tapping of Supreme Court Wires Reported

New York, Oct. 30.—(P) Counsel for a Senate subcommittee investigating wire tapping, said today that hearings would be started in Washington Friday to determine whether the wires of United States supreme court justices were tapped when an important decision was pending.

William Power Maloney, the counsel mentioned, October 28, 1938, is the time of the reported tapping, but he did not specify the case in which a decision was expected.

The hearings held by a subcommittee of the Senate internal security committee will take place in the Senate office building.

TURKEY MAY BE NEXT TO RECEIVE AN ULTIMATUM

Well-Informed Berlin Sources Hint Axis Powers Planning New Step to Shatter Britain's Strength in the Mediterranean

By the Associated Press
Berlin, Oct. 30.—(P) Informed German sources hinted today that the Axis powers determined to shatter Britain's strength in the Mediterranean soon may hand Turkey an ultimatum similar to that which preceded Italy's invasion of Greece.

Turkey, like Greece, is a friend of Britain which has guaranteed to help her in event of aggression by any European nation involving Turkey in war in the Mediterranean.

Commenting upon Axis plans the semi-official Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, which has close relations with the German foreign office, said:

"Wherever British bases and hideouts exist, they must be exterminated in the interests of the European continuity. This naturally applies to the Mediterranean."

Previously, the usually well-informed Dienst Aus Deutschland indicated Adolf Hitler and Premier Mussolini had agreed at their Florence meeting Monday upon some unified action against Britain in which France and Spain might have a role.

The National Zeitung of Essen predicted the next Axis step would be an attempt to sever British connections with Europe, Asia and Africa so that no port in those continents would be open to British warships.

The German public learned for the first time yesterday that Italian troops had invaded Greece after the Athens government had rejected an Italian ultimatum.

ORDER TOBILIMPS
Washington, Oct. 30.—(P) A $1,241,000 navy order for six non-rigid blimps to be used for coast patrol and training work was announced today by Secretary Knox.

The contracts went to the Goodyear Aircraft Corporation, Akron, O., sole bidder.

NAMES APPROVED
Washington, Oct. 30.—(P) The War Department has given official approval to the name of Infanteria Gap Military Reservation, Pa.

Establishment of Machinery for Priority System In Industry Brings Rush of Orders
New York, Oct. 30.—(P) From the growth in the volume of action today the recent presidential action establishing machinery for a priority system in industry has brought a rush of orders.

Even though the voluntary system of preferential rating of defense orders has been working satisfactorily in the steel industry, the magazine said, and may be continued for some time to come.

ATTACKS GAINING IN INTENSITY

Authoritative Fascist Quarters in Rome Acknowledge Stubborn Resistance Is Being Met, But Deny Troops of Little Aegean Kingdom Have Driven Counter-Thrust Into Albania, Starting Point of Invasion

KEY PORTS ON COAST ARE MINED BY BRITAIN

By the Associated Press
A Rome radio broadcast said today that Italian troops had smashed 10 miles into Greece, capturing the town of St. Nicholas but Athens reported that reinforced Greek fighters were holding an unbroken front under heavy artillery fire.

The Italian attacks supported by planes and mountain guns were said to be steadily intensifying.

Mussolini's high command, with unusual brevity merely reported "Our troops have continued the advance into Greek territory, overcoming resistance of the enemy's rearguard."

By contrast with this 15-word report on the war with Greece, the Italian High Command devoted 53 words to the Fascist campaign in Africa noting mostly indecisive actions about outposts in the African desert.

Countering London denials as to "troop" landings, the British information office in Ankara, Turkey, announced British naval detachments had landed on the Greek Isle of Crete and also on the island of Cephalonia, south of Corfu, in the Ionian sea.

Turkey kept official silence on her attitude toward the Italian-Greek conflict, but the Turkish press described Turkey as "wholeheartedly with Greece."

Authoritative Fascist quarters in Rome acknowledged the Greeks were resisting stubbornly, but they denied that troops of the little Aegean kingdom had driven a counter-thrust into Albania, starting point of the Italian invasion Monday.

These quarters said Mussolini's legions were advancing deeper into Greece without encountering serious military difficulties.

Great Britain stepped up aid to her ally, the London Admiralty announced by mining approaches to 10 miles from the Greek coast, and in the gulf of Argolis, which guards Piraeus, the port of Athens.

And spare reports of actual fighting.

STATE ASSEMBLYMAN

AROUND NEW YORK

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Recently Sonny (C. V.) Whitney got back to NY from a 20,000 mile aerial tour of the southern Pacific. When he gets on trips or stays in town for that matter, he notes each day's happenings in a personal diary. Here are a few leaves from his diary, written on this tour.

"About Canton Island. . . The first things you see as you glide down and tie up to the wharf, are the British and American flags, side by side. Canton is the only island in the world under the point sovereignty of Great Britain and the U. S. . . Poor Mr. and Mrs. Flemming, the agents of His Majesty the King. When the war came, they were forgotten on this tiny isle. Their provision boat did not come as usual, and they are now supported by Pan American Airways. . .

"On Nukunui Island. . . There are about 10 women for every man. . . I must tell you, says a British government medic, 'they are the most beautiful women I have seen in all the South Seas. They are perfect— and unspoiled, for they are never visited by the outside world'. . . They told me about the Clipper coming over for the first time. All were in church. . . A woman came in, shrieking 'The Angel of Death is approaching'. Everyone dashed out of the church. They grabbed their babies and took to the bush where they stayed until it passed over. . .

"NEW CAEDONIA. . . Used to belong to France, now under the De Gaulle government in London. An island being watched by Japan through a periscope and by Australia through a monocular. . . Noumea (the capital) itself still has the charm of a French provincial village. Champagne is 25 cents a quart. . .

"Bali. . . My first impression of Bali was in the two individuals who were standing by the plane to help us alight. One was a Balinese soldier looking very efficient in his spotless uniform, the other a porter clad only in a sarong. The Balinese soldier is selected for the principal role. The girl hangs her head over the fire in which the Medicine Men pour various herbs and potions until she finally becomes drugged by the fumes. . . They stand her in the middle of the hut and transform her from a drab figure into a beautiful Cinderella clad in a costume of gold. Her chorus of girls sits on one side of the arena, and on the other side are groups of at least 50 men each, naked to the waist, faces painted, long talon-like claws attached to their fingers. The whole scene is lit by torches and the full moon filtering down through palm trees. . . Then follows the Balinese version of the Creation. . . While the story unfolds in song and acting, the girl dances in a trance as the spirits are supposed to move her. . . This performance would make a sensation on any stage in America. . .

"We spend a week in Java. . . The Sultan is one of the last remaining Eastern Potentates. . . He has an autocratic rule over 40,000,000 people. . . There are 20,000 within the walls of his palace. . . He is only 26 and speaks perfect English. . . As we toured the palace with him I saw a table tennis set stowed away in a corner. When I mentioned this his face lit up and he said, 'Yes, that's the only exercise I get'. . . I believe he has about 15 wives and there are a horde of royal princesses. . .

COUNTY COUNCIL OF SPORTSMEN HOLDS ELECTION

A. K. Daniels, of the Sheffield Rod and Gun Club, was elected president of the Warren County Council of Sportsmen last night at the annual meeting, held at the Y. M. C. A.

Other officers named are: Guy F. McCloskey, of the Izaak Walton Club of Warren, vice-president; Howard Lauffenberger, Pine Grove Sportsmen's Association of Russell, secretary-treasurer; L. E. Linder, of the Warren club, as representative to the Northwestern Division of the Pennsylvania Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs; and S. R. Nicholson, of the Tidouche Bucktails, as alternate representative.

Ford Osgood, president of the newly-formed Pittsfield-Forest Fish and Game Conservation Club, was introduced and the new club was accepted as a member of the council.

A mass meeting of all county sportsmen will be held Monday evening, November 25th, at which time moving pictures on wild life, hunting and safety will be shown.

SECOND NIGHT FOR CARNIVAL ATTRACTS MANY

Another good crowd attended the second night of the North Warren Hallowe'en celebration last evening and while the weather was rainy and cold outdoors, the carnival, which is entirely under cover, was warm and dry. Over 8,000 square feet of floor space is being used.

A midway of carnival concessions, which are new and different, provided plenty of fun for those attending. In addition, a different program of entertainment is offered each night, as well as valuable prizes throughout each evening.

The home decoration contest being sponsored by the Civic Club is attracting many people to North Warren. All displays are well lighted and easily seen from a passing car.

Free protected parking is offered to the attendees at the carnival. The lot is located directly across from the Community House.

The celebration is running all this week, with the grand wind-up on Saturday, November 2nd.

Saturday afternoon at three o'clock the Kids' Parade will be held. All children under 15 years of age are urged to attend in costume and join the merry-makers. Prizes will be awarded for costumes. In case of rain the parade will be held in the Community House.

All profits from the celebration will go to the North Warren Community House fund. The general committee is composed of Henry W. Ledebur, chairman; George E. Cowden, Russell F. Dietrich and Donald K. Burghard.

Thursday, Hallowe'en night, prizes will be offered for adults who attend in costume.

The U. S. Forest Service has a complete display on wildlife and fire prevention. There is no charge for this exhibit.

PEDESTRIAN IS SERIOUSLY HURT AT YOUNGSVILLE

Charles Carlson, 58, an employee of the Central Pennsylvania Lumber Company at Sheffield for 25 years and more recently a resident of Youngsville, was seriously injured last night when he was struck by a car near the borough limits of Youngsville on Route 27.

The Youngsville man was walking on the highway near the brickyard when he was struck by a car driven by Francis D. Reagan, of Hartford, Conn., who was driving north. The injured man was taken to the office of a physician and removed to the Warren General Hospital in an ambulance.

It was found that he had received a possible fracture of the right leg, lacerations about the face and body and internal injuries. His condition is reported as fair today.

The accident, which occurred about 7:30 p. m., was investigated by Corporal D. A. Gent, of the state motor police.

Democratic Women of Co. Hear Interesting Talks on Campaign By Prominent Members of Party Here

More than 70 persons attended the tureen dinner and rally held last night at the Y. W. C. A. activities building under the joint sponsorship of the Eleanor Roosevelt Club and the Warren County Federation of Democratic Women. Orange and black decorations carried out a Hallowe'en thought in the table appointments.

After a salute to the flag, Mrs. E. H. Taylor led group singing of patriotic selections and Attorney C. Henry Nicholson was called upon for an invocation.

Dr. Leroy B. Campbell was then presented and gave a brief resume of changes in the party since Mr. Roosevelt took office, voicing an earnest hope that each one present go to the polls and elect a party of their own choice.

Prayer through the reelection of President Roosevelt. He recommended a vote for the election of Attorney C. Henry Nicholson to the assembly pointing out the local candidates' professional abilities and experience.

Norbert J. Fitzgerald, of Erie, who was then introduced, is a former communist and a workman's compensation act. He was a member of the state legislature. It was recalled last during his term of office, he made the speech from the floor of the house that was largely responsible for enactment of the mother's pension law in this state. Mr. Fitzgerald made a vigorous contrast of conditions before and after the election of President Roosevelt. He, too, made an appeal for the election of Nicholson.

Mr. Nicholson, Democratic county chairman, extended his thanks to those who had planned the dinner and meeting and to all who have worked with him and other leaders during the campaign, appealing to them to continue their efforts to the success of the candidates and party in the coming election.

Attorney E. H. Beshlin spoke of the conduct of the Republican campaign, pointing out inaccuracies of statement and offering conclusive proof in each case.

The vice chairman of the party, Mrs. Leon Harris, thanked all for their cooperation in keeping all organization affairs functioning so smoothly and the program was concluded with brief remarks by presidents of the two sponsoring clubs.

CHECK SUSPECT ALIBI IN MYSTERY MURDER

East Liverpool, O., Oct. 30.—(P)—Investigation checked today a detailed alibi offered by a 55-year-old produce trucker held for questioning in the strangling of Mrs. Julia Wall, 46, slain four days after her marriage to a Smith's Ferry, Beaver county, Pa., steelworker.

Mrs. Wall's body was found yesterday grotesquely jammed into a potato barrel. A pedestrian sighted the barrel beside a cinder land. Police Chief Hugh J. McDermott said a ring fitting an impression on one of the victim's fingers was taken from the trucker's clothing. McDermott identified Mrs. Wall as a former clerk in the suspect's produce shop.

Perjury Trail Nearing Close

Defense attempts to introduce other witnesses to testify regarding Communist nominating petitions they signed were blocked by Judge J. Frank Graff, who ruled such testimony "irrelevant."

One defendant, Logan Burkhart, vice-president of a CIO United Electrical Workers Local, said he circulated Communist petitions "because the Communist party has been the only party to consistently oppose Wall Street efforts to drag us into war."

DOUBLE FEATURE BILL AT LIBRARY THEATRE TODAY AND THURSDAY

"Dulcy"

Designed for laughing purposes and fulfilling this assignment to perfection, "Dulcy," starring Ann Sothern, plays today and Thursday at the Library Theatre.

Guaranteed to knock the blues into that proverbial "cocked hat," "Dulcy" tells the story of the exploits of one Dulcy Ward, wealthy, good-looking, but possessed with a faculty for getting everyone whom she contacts into maddening complications. How she goes about arranging for her heart interest to sell his airplane motor to one of the largest manufacturing concerns in existence makes for hilarious entertainment from start to finish.

"Angels Over Broadway"

"Angels Over Broadway," hailed as one of the most tenderly human romances of the year, plays today and Thursday at the Library Theatre. Written, directed, and produced by Ben Hecht with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. acting as co-producer, the new Columbia drama tells the story of four people in search of a "break"—a grifter, a cafe entertainer, a thief and a drunken playwright. Fairbanks is starred, featured members of the cast include Rita Hayworth, Thomas Mitchell and John Qualen.

Hands Across the Border---Hold Recipes

AP Feature Service
National Girl Scout Week is being observed October 27-November 2 with special emphasis on international friendship and community service.

Those were the principles put into practice in the training of girls by Mrs. Juliette Low, founder of the Girl Scout organization in this country. October 31, birthday of the late Mrs. Low, is annually celebrated by the Scouts.

One way to gain better appreciation of the people of another land Girl Scouts have found is to exchange ideas on food. It's a regular practice at annual international Scout camps.

Among the many recipes girls of the United States obtained from girls south of the border during a recent encampment at Pleasantville N. Y. is the following for eggs a la Mexicana:

6 eggs
1 cup or small can of cooked kidney beans
2 lbs. olive oil or bacon fat
1 green pepper
Sauté the sliced pepper in fat four or five minutes. Add kidney beans and eggs. Stir until eggs are cooked. Season with salt and pepper.

Friends of Scouting in Warren county are particularly interested in mention of the above encampment held the last two weeks in August since Miss Jo Mackay was a representative of the Warren County Council.

Girl Scouts in camp learn to appreciate food and to appreciate new-found friends who bring exciting food suggestions from far-away lands.

esting talk on "Feins" and demonstrated the subject by showing a collection of specimens.

Mrs. C. L. Eckdahl gave an article on "Fertilizing the Perennial Border." The next session will be a Christmas party in connection with the regular program in the parlor of the Presbyterian church at Sugar Grove.

Lunch was served with Mrs. Clara Burgett and Mrs. Clara Landell pouring. The hostesses were Mrs. Hazel Ludwig, Mrs. Maian Skinner and Mrs. Nelson.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Johnson and family attended a silver wedding anniversary gathering in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Johnson at their home in Erie recently.

Harriet and John Dudgeon spent the last weekend with their sister, Mrs. Ethel Youngberg of Jamestown.

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harley Dudgeon recently were Mr. and Mrs. Elton Anderson.

TIMES TOPICS

MARRIAGE LICENSE

Donald Andrew Phillips of Truemans, Forest county, and Betty Marie Wellacher, of Barnes, made application for a marriage license this morning at the office of Registrar and Recorder E. E. Loyer.

ATTEND FUNERAL

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cobb, Mrs. George West and George Pope are attending the funeral of Mrs. Lottie Springer in Friesburg, N. Y., this afternoon. Mrs. Springer was the mother of the late Patman William Pope, of Warren, and grandmother of George Pope.

REPRESENTATIVE HERE

A representative from the Erie field office of the social security board will be available to residents of Warren county in the State Employment office, Warren Land building, 225 Pennsylvania avenue, west, on Monday, November 4, it was announced today.

STUDENTS GET TEST

An automobile test was given to all Warren High School students this week. Last week the same test was given to the Beady students, for the purpose of ascertaining whether the pupils have defective hearing. The test is not compulsory, but has proved as helpful as a medical examination.

SOCIAL SECURITY RETURNS

Taxpayers are reminded that October 31 is the last day upon which social security or employment taxpayers can file returns for the third quarter of 1940 without incurring penalty. A deputy collector from the Internal Revenue Service will be on duty at day Thursday at room 203, post office building, for the purpose of accepting returns and assisting taxpayers in preparing their returns.

CRASH NEAR TIONA

Harry F. Long, 39, of Clarendon, received lacerations about the face and body last night about 11:45 o'clock when his car ran off the road near Tiona, traveled 110 feet along the berm, snapped off a pole carrying high tension wires and came to rest against a culvert. The car, a Dodge coupe, was completely demolished. Private police, who investigated, stated that a charge of reckless driving will be filed against the driver.

HOLD FAMILY NIGHT

The third in a series of weekly "family nights" was conducted last night at the local Salvation Army citadel with the J. DeWalt family in charge of the program, which included a solo by Anna Mae DeWalt, a band selection, a praise service led by Mrs. DeWalt and a talk by Mr. DeWalt on "Love - A Moving Force". It was announced that the Fellows family will be in charge next Tuesday. Previous to last night, families in charge included the T. Kittle and I. Malha families.

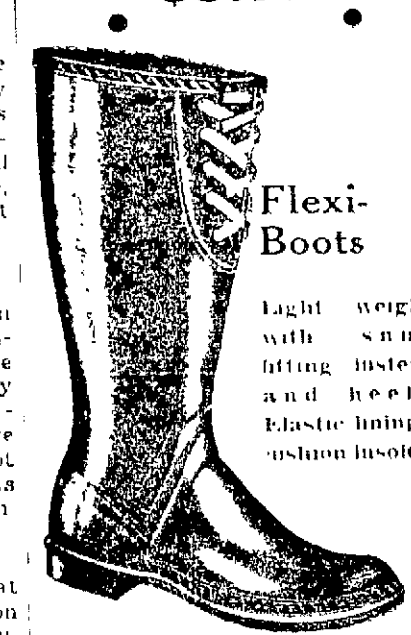

COUNTY BAR MEETS
Attorney R. Pierson Eaton was the speaker at the first dinner-meeting of the Warren County Bar Association, held last evening at the Y. W. C. A. Attorney Eaton spoke on the Selective Service Act, tracing the history of the various conscription and service acts passed by congress since Colonial times. Mr. Eaton, who is the government agent for Draft Board No. 1 in this city, explained some of the procedural duties of the attorneys attached to the board. President S. D. Blackman presided over the business session at which several matters of interest to the association were discussed. L. C. Jamieson was reinstated to membership and a legal institute was planned.

BE WORTHY OF YOUR HERITAGE—VOTE!

School officials responsible for the plan inaugurated at Beaty whereby students attending that building are to be encouraged in interesting adults in their families to go to the polls next Tuesday are to be commended for devising an excellent plan for promoting good citizenship.

In this connection it is interesting, to note that many individuals and groups, without promoting candidacies of any candidate or party, are endeavoring to arouse citizens to the importance of exercising the right of franchise.

The political campaign is getting hotter by the minute. In fact, many people are taking it so hard that actual wounds are being opened and personal relations endangered.

For such we prescribe the reading of a simple sentence which has come from that extraordinary calm man who ran for the presidency in 1936, lost, and came up bigger than before. We mean Alf Landon.

He told a gathering the other night that "whoever is elected will be my president for the next four years."

Spoken like a sportsman and an American. A good sentence to repeat to yourself the next time a political argument starts your neck to spilling over your collar.

In line with the project at Beaty Willis Thornton writes an editorial for NEA and The Times-Mirror which is recommended for study and thought by every reader. It follows:

Now we come close to the day when we shall choose our President for the next four years.

Every citizen may go peacefully to the polling place, vote his or her conviction, and have that vote counted on an equality with that of any other citizen.

We are accustomed to this. So accustomed are we, in fact, that some may be tempted to ignore the precious privilege. Let them think a moment of the heritage they cast away:

It was 151 years ago that Americans first gathered under the same Constitution they have today to choose the first President under our present system of government. Today it is one of the oldest continuous governments on earth. Within its years France, for instance, has run the gamut from absolutism down into violent Communistic revolution, through republicanism, and into a yet amorphous totalitarianism.

In that first election, only a comparatively few men were able to vote. Extension of the suffrage to all men, then to women, has come as the result of long agitation and struggle. We have broadened our democracy decade by decade since that early first election of 1789.

That struggling new nation, shakily recovering from seven long years of devastating war, striking out boldly toward new institutions of freedom, has today become a vast nation of 130,000,000 people, whose power and influence are great in the world.

But all that power and strength are built on the same foundation on which they wrought who voted for the electors who chose Washington in 1789—the ballot.

The sweat and the blood of the forefathers won that precious right. The blood and sweat of eight generations preserved it. It is not to be lightly cast aside.

Go to the polls on Nov. 5 and vote. Vote our way if you can, the other way if you must, but vote.

To see the vote this fall sweep triumphantly above the 50,000,000 mark for a new all-time record will be a thundering testimony to all the world that democracy is still vital and strong and unafraid.

Then, our choice made, let us go forward and a united people, toward our democratic goal, our destiny as a free people!

Warren county Girl Scouts, along with others in the country, are having an appropriate anniversary observance.

Well, young fellow, Uncle Sam has a number now!

Man About Manhattan

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—About two years ago I dropped into one of the Broadway clubs and saw a lanky, red-headed comedian by the name of Danny Kaye put on his act. To me, he seemed funny. Not all comedians do. A few minutes later Billy Rose walked up to him and told him he thought he was one of the cleverest comedians he had ever seen. That was high praise.

Looking back on that night I recall a little song that Kaye sang. It was "Sweet Molly Malone." "I picked it up in Dublin," he explained. "I heard somebody sing it on some crowded Dublin street, and I liked it."

Today, this song has become a great hit in the East. I suppose you can find it recorded by many people, but the one I like best of all is Maxine Sullivan. Her rendition of it is the record of the month.

OUR coming-up-in-the-world note for the week concerns Charlie Chaplin. . . . In the old days Charlie signed himself simply as "Charlie." But since he has made "The Dictator" he has billed himself as "Charles" Chaplin. . . . Seems mighty august to me.

They are calling Lanny Ross' farm house, which has only four rooms, "Singer's Midway." Jimmy Van Heusen, the composer and band leader, is also a pilot. He has named his plane "All This and Heaven Too," after one of his song hits. Van Heusen's real name is Edward Chester Bobcock.

There's a fellow in the town who came out of the box car and hobo camps of America to become an operator of nightclubs and a producer of plays. Late the other night, through heavy-lidded eyes, he peered at me for a long time.

then said, "When you're broke you've got lots of friends. But when you win a little success they seem to fall away from you." Well, I should have said to him some of the things on my mind. . . . I should have said, "Since you made a little money you've become a first class heel. On one or two occasions you've pulled some raw deals. . . . What did you peck?" But I didn't. I took the easy way out, pretending not to hear him. . . . I wish now I had let him have it.

THIS new Cafe Society club on 58th strikes a responsive chord. It was the first time I'd been by there in years. Back in 1933, a week or so after repeal, Belle Livingston opened a nightclub there, and she sent me a little note saying, "I am endeavoring to make even repeal attractive."

But Belle failed. Then, in this order, the club became known as Joe Zella's, El Rio, Mother Kelly's, and the Surf Club. All gave up the ghost. Cafe Society is redoing the exterior by painting murals on the outside walls. One little difficulty was encountered when the artist found a small window in the way of his mural. He solved his problem by painting a frame around the pane, causing it to resemble a framed painting.

One of my Japanese friends, a Tokyo correspondent, sums up his idea of Utopia thusly: "Marry a Japanese girl, eat Chinese food, and live in America in an apartment house."

According to an exchange black cigars, foamy beer and 99 proof whiskey have disappeared from political meetings and ice cream parlors and tea rooms, take them place. At several meetings of women political circles this week ice cream was served instead of "booth" with tea as a chaser instead of "gro."

The only thing that the Ellis Minstrels haven't increased is the parade an' procession have seen the boys in the parade. The parade passed the parade. The parade no instructions in the art of "padding."

A masquerade party was held at the Outing Club last evening with 150 members and guests attending. Wade's orchestra supplied music.

J. H. West was in the discussion at the meeting of the Life Study Club Tuesday. The topic will be "Our National Debt."

W. A. Rockwell and James Rogers returned to Warren this morning from a business visit to New York and other eastern cities.

It was snappy early this morning and the sun was bright upon house-tops covered with snow.

The East Texas oil field, 10 years old has produced one-tenth of all the oil sold in the United States in the past 80 years.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Europe's Stamp Future Is Philatelic Puzzle

HITLER is making almost as great a jumble of European stamps as he is the map of Europe. The Third Republic of France ended philately with the semi-postal issue above, one of two designs with surtax for the Red Cross. A new issue, picturing Premier Marshal Petain has been announced.

The conquered nations of the west—Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Norway—have continued to use their own stamps. Belgium lost Eupen and Malmedy and Germany released two pictorial German possessions. German issues are also in use in Alsace and Lorraine.

Hungary and Rumania fought a "war of stamps" over Transylvania, and Hungary has already issued a single item heralding return of the province. Rumania also has a flood of King Carol II issues on hand that must be replaced.

Practically forgotten is the Balkan Entente, honored this year by four sets of the signatories of the pact. The promised, but never issued, Anglo-French stamp is a thing of the past.

War plays havoc with stamp albums, too.

THE ROAD TO SHANI LUN

by Rita Mohler Hanson

YESTERDAY: As in a dream, lovely Lynn Britton is riding across the Mongolian plain in a chariot of gold to a marriage with the Prince of Shani Lun. Although she is in love with Temu Darin, the Prince's faithful messenger, Lynn can not bring herself to do anything, even the odd situation in which she finds herself. She feels herself drawn forward by a mystic presence she cannot understand.

Chapter 29

Desert Attack

LYNN bit her lips and forced herself to speak. "Also my heart warms to you."

She felt a tremor in Temu's arm, but his face was expressionless, his eyes straight ahead like a soldier at attention. She scrutinized his profile with its strong nose and chin, the lean, bronze cheek that bore no scar.

"We'll soon be in Delun," he said through closed teeth.

She laughed and stepped away from his side. "Faithful subject! Incurable to the end!" Yet, a vague depression clutched at her heart. He seemed so confident that she belonged to the Prince.

Why, wondered her direct American mind. What queer, fatalistic twist gave him this iron control and determination?

Simultaneously they became aware of a dull, droning noise. They whirled and looked south, searching for the noise. Temu was the first to see the tiny black specks in the sky.

"They've come," he exclaimed. "Three bombing planes!"

The ships dipped low and circled over them. All the men in the camp were staring; Peggy had rushed out from her tent. The grazing horses began to mill with the herders trying to circle round them.

"You knew they were coming!" Lynn gasped. "What are they after?"

Temu watched the maneuvers in the air for a moment longer before he answered. "They're looking for a camp caravan bringing in combat arms. They are Chinese government planes."

At that instant, the machines rose and straightened out in formation, headed east.

It was then Temu spied the caravan, lined up in several rows along the edge of a hill bordering the plain. They were just leaving camp for the night's march.

"There must be a thousand camels," muttered Temu, calling for his field-glasses.

The planes had evidently spotted their prey. They zoomed low over the files of loaded animals, and straightening out dropped their bombs at spaced intervals.

Bula handed Temu the glasses. She was glad she had none; she could see enough as it was. Fire flashed, dust spouted! Ammunition exploded with staccato bursts of drumfire that drowned the screams of the men and camels. A few of the animals stampeded and escaped. Some fell injured; many dropped dead. Others, loaded with explosives, disappeared into fragments of bone and skin and mist.

As the planes rose from the holocaust, the watchers noticed that one machine lagged behind. It seemed to try to climb, and then made a neat landing on the plain about a mile to the south. Temu and certain of his men mounted the string of ponies that stood saddled day and night before a Mongol camp and raced down to the grounded flying machine, above which two ships circled like eagles watching their babe that has failed to fly.

The girls, left alone, looked at each other, wide-eyed. They felt half stunned. Everything had happened with such incredible speed. Peggy turned and entered the tent with faltering steps. Lynn would have followed her.

Dick Returns

SUDDENLY she stopped and stiffened. A cricket had chirped. Or had she heard a low whistle? She turned toward the direction from which the sound had come—the cliff side of the elevation on which she stood. A cautious head rose over the rim of the canyon wall. Lynn recognized her half-brother.

She could not believe her eyes. As she stood rooted to the spot he beckoned her to approach. Instead of obeying the summons she turned and entered the tent.

Lynn spoke as casually as she could to Peggy, who had dropped down on her bed. "I am going to stroll around a bit. I'll return later."

Lynn noted that the few men who had not followed Temu were busy about the campfires. The sentry who always guarded her tent sat cross-legged beside a pile of baggage eating his supper. She walked to the promontory rim and dropped over the edge to Dick's side. He was trembling with excitement; the contagion spread to her.

"Thank God, you understood!" he whispered hoarsely.

"What are you doing here?" she demanded.

"I've come to rescue you. If we can get away from here without being seen we're safe. I've a few men and horses hidden beyond a curve in the canyon. Not enough to attack this whitehorse troop but enough to take you from them. Come."

He saw her hesitate. "I always intended to rescue you, Lynn. Haven't time to explain now. Will you come?"

A moment's thought and she gave him her hand.

They made breathless haste down the difficult cliff of dull, red clay, and, rounding the curve in the canyon, approached Dick's waiting men. A band of hard-riding Mongols who had had Russian military training, he explained. They hastily brought up horses for Dick and Lynn to mount.

The ride, too swift and desperate to allow for talking, did not end until late in the night when they approached the main body of Dick's encamped force. Not a large one, Lynn noticed, in comparison with Temu Darin's whitehorse troop.

Dick Britton helped his sister from the saddle. "We'll go into my tent," he said, while I have a shelter put up for you."

Lynn dropped on the bed and stretched out gratefully; the short stirrups saddle she had ridden had cramped uncomfortably.

Still keyed up with excitement Dick strolled about the tent eating his bowl of boiled mutton and rice. Presently Lynn sat up. "All right, Dick, what have you to say for yourself?"

He gave her a sharp look. "Tell me first how things have gone with you. Did you keep your mouth shut as I directed?"

She shrugged. "When they finally showed me that letter proving you had made a bargain with the Prince—"

"I can explain all that," he interrupted. "What else did they tell you?"

Lynn did not like to be questioned. She distrusted Dick thoroughly, but coming with him had seemed the better of two evils. She saw he was trying to find out much that she knew before committing himself. Well, she knew very little, but she knew one thing that he did not—that the Prince was a white man—and she had no intention of telling her brother this. She also knew that a price had been set on Temu Darin's head and she now surmised that Dick was the man who had set the price.

New Conspiracy

"THEY told me that the Prince has enemies and dares not leave his own territory right now," she said, "and that Temu Darin was sent with Sheroch, a group of Sherdocks, on a military escort. Why were you so afraid of Temu Darin?"

It was a moment before Dick spoke, and then he answered carefully as if weighing each word. "Temu Darin's appearance at Pai Shu spoiled my plans. I could handle the priest, but not the soldier. I had to get out—go on ahead. I couldn't take you. I wasn't ready yet to show my hand, but I knew you'd be safe with them." He looked at her directly. "You were safe, weren't you?"

She nodded. "They've been decent to me, Dick, except that they're determined to take me to their Prince in Delun. I escaped once before and Temu got me back. Are we really safe from him here?"

"Perfectly safe, and we're going on soon." His face lightened up. "We're staying pretty. We've got Temu Darin and the whitehorse group of Sherdocks and we're ahead of them. The Duke of Sachto and his followers are with us body and soul. There are great things ahead, Lynn, if only you will play the game."

"Play the game! What do you mean?"

"With me to do the ground work and you to lend the prestige of the Goddess Tara, we can change the course of an empire."

"Go on," she said passively.

"The man really entitled to rule Shani Lun is the Duke of Sachto, husband of the old Prince's only child. I'm backing him."

"What if I don't wish to join you in this scheme?"

"His eyes hardened. 'You'd be a fool to oppose me. I'm going through with this proposition.' She noticed how much more aggressive he was, more sure of himself and less careful of her opinion than he had been in Pai Shu. 'We have men in the forts and in strategic positions in the army. We have the Duchess of Sachto and her retainers in the palace.'"

"The people are ignorant. The resources of the country have never been developed; there are immense deposits of silver and gold and jade. There is copper and oil and a district of blue earth that may some day rival the diamond mines of Africa." He reached out and caught Lynn's hand.

"Lynn, we can make millions!" he said, and added, as he noticed the expression on her face, "we can also help the people, raise them from their filth and barbarism—civilize them."

She drew her hand from under his and hugged her knees. "Civilize them! Sherdocks says that slaves are freed only from within."

"Sherdocks!" Dick gave a short exultant laugh. "Lynn, we surprised that old boy's camp this morning by the salt lake near Watch Tower Wells and carried him off, leaving Gersing for Temu Darin to find tomorrow."

"Did you harm Gersing?" Lynn demanded.

"We did not. You couldn't hurt that old battle-axe anyhow. She and the little Chinese maid remained in the ruins of the camp where Temu could find them."

"And what's more?" Dick went on. "The joke of that bombing is not on us. The rebels paid us yesterday and took possession. Before this, they were after Temu Darin for the ransom we offered, now they'll be after him for informing the Chinese government of this arms shipment."

"But Dick, just what are your plans?"

He gave her a quick look from his cloudy eyes. "Do you really want to know?"

"I do," though she wondered how much would be false and how much true.

POLITICAL FORUM

REPUBLICAN

When the President in his Philadelphia speech cited the Federal Reserve index of industrial production to show that the country was now prosperous, he raised economic questions of the greatest importance, but his reliance on those figures (which, by the way, are arrived at by such a weird method of bookkeeping that they are no longer considered reliable by leading statisticians) only serves to show his basic lack of knowledge of the economic system under which America functions.

A study of the record of industrial production since the turn of the century shows that so far as actual production is concerned previous depressions have only run a year or two; the depression of 1929 has continued to drag along in America.

In the face of this record the New Deal has adopted an attitude of defeatism. Rather than accept any responsibility for the prolonged depression, it has preached the doctrine that the American system has reached "maturity"; that it has stopped growing, simply because there is no growth in it. This, of course, is a useful doctrine if you wish to establish a "planned" economy; if you wish to look to a future of continued redistribution instead of expansion. But the record does not bear out this doctrine. It does not show any slowing down in the rate of American industrial growth until the last decade.

Endless dispute is no doubt possible as to the New Deal's exact degree of responsibility or lack of responsibility for this result, but it is clear that one reason why conditions have not been better in the last seven years has been Mr. Roosevelt's own basic lack of understanding of economic principles or the industrial process. It is not merely that Mr. Roosevelt has insisted on such ill-considered legislation that has directly or indirectly discouraged or reduced production. He actually seems to fear production itself. Mr. Willkie quoted in Buffalo as an illustration the remark of Mr. Roosevelt in 1932 that "A mere builder of more industrial plants . . . is as likely to be a danger as a help." He might have quoted the even more astonishing statement of Mr. Roosevelt in May of 1936: "Reduction of costs of manufacture does not mean more purchasing power and more goods consumed. It means just the opposite." If this dictum were true, then everything that we have hitherto called industrial and economic progress, every new invention, every move to increase productive efficiency, would be a cause for alarm.

Our great purpose today is maximum industrial production to maintain living standards and to secure maximum defense. This is much more likely to be achieved by a man who believes in production and efficiency than by a man who seems to be alarmed by them. The question of defense is a question of production. By no stretch of the imagination can this be considered a question of division or re-distribution. The defense crisis, that Mr. Roosevelt hoped to turn into an hysterical stampede becomes instead a means for visualizing more clearly than ever the real nature of the administration that has been hampering America for nearly eight years.

DEMOCRAT

PARTIES AND PRINCIPLES
Many people have asked, "What is the difference in the Republican and Democratic parties?"

The demarcation was laid down by Thomas Jefferson, who classified political parties into two groups, one which comprised the plutocratic or wealth and property owning classes, and the other comprising the working and farming classes. This classification still holds good today, although the names of the parties have changed since Jefferson's day. The wealthy plutocratic class owns and controls the corporations and the banks. This is the class comprising the backbone of the Republican party. The working classes and the farmers are representative of the Democratic party.

The Republican party stands primarily for property rights and subordinates the rights of human beings. The Democratic party stands for the rights of human beings in opposition to property rights insofar as those property rights deny to the people the rights of life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

The political and economic history of our country can be simplified into this essential struggle. Republican administrations have run riot over the country, gutting its natural resources, gambling with public money, building up a colossal stock market and money racket, causing financial panics, and beating down the laboring and farming classes. Enormous campaign funds have always been available within the Republican ranks and they have never had any difficulty in nominating an incompetent stooge to the Presidency, as witness the present election. On the other hand, the Democratic party has always had to repair the damage and destruction of Republican devastation.

The Republican party with its control of wealth and the press (it controls 90% of the press) is in a position to build up a very good front for itself. With its control of the press, a great portion of the public is easily duped by its propaganda and thereby people whose fundamental interests are Democratic, support the Republican party instead.

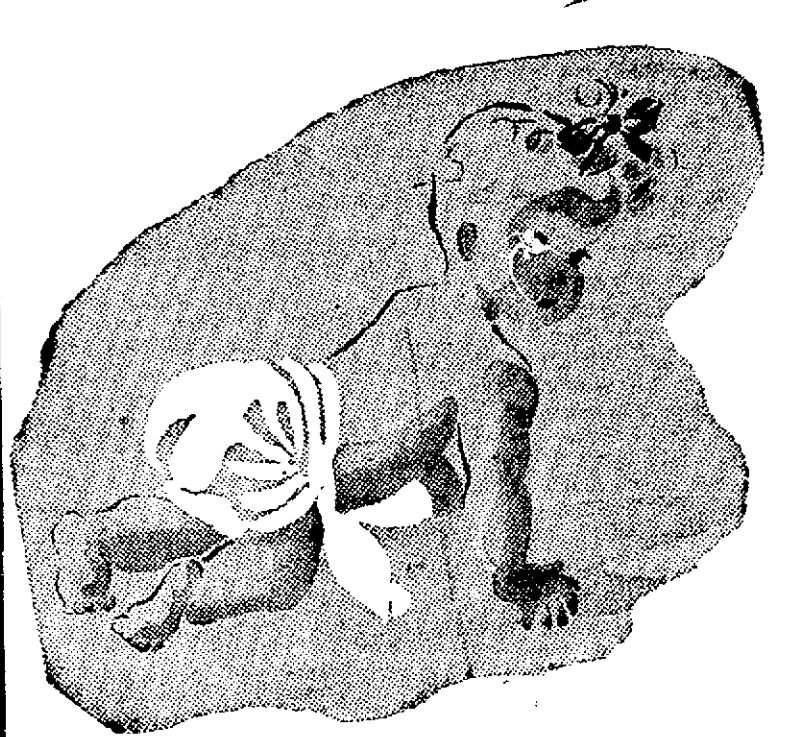

This enormous power on the part of corporations has been deployed by every right-thinking authority and today is considered the paramount problem of modern government and society. It is exactly the same power which placed Mussolini, Hitler and Franco in power. When, in these countries, the plutocratic classes saw the possibility of the working classes having a voice in government, they immediately promoted a rabble-rouser and through him seized power and he, in turn parcelled out business and trade monopolies to them.

We see this same force at work in the nomination of Mr. Willkie. The real power behind the Republican machine seized control from the professional party leaders and nominated a candidate who to them represented all that the party stands for.

It is simply the same old game of Dictatorship which prior here to has played its hand unobtrusively by staying in the background and manipulating the scenes and actions from behind. However the slight element of decency which showed evidence of creeping into the party if it were to survive, struck panic to the hearts of J. P. Morgan and his gang of thieves so the result was the Wall Street engineered nomination of Mr. Willkie, who besides being a business associate of Mr. Morgan, stands for all the things dear to the heart of Wall Street and the big-money, super-corporation domination of government.

SHEFFIELD MAN IS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Sheffield, Oct. 29.—Raymond Burgason, 24, of Marienville, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Burgason, this place, is a patient in the Kane Community Hospital with a fractured neck vertebra and lesser injuries which he sustained about 7:50 Sunday evening when the car in which he was a passenger rammed into the rear of another car on the General Kane highway, a few miles north of Marienville.

Other passengers in the car were Newt Dynak, owner-operator; Michael Pochatko and Edward Burgason, a brother of the hospital patient, all of Sheffield. They escaped with minor bruises and cuts.

According to one of the group, the young men were taking Raymond, who had spent the weekend in Sheffield, to Marienville when the mishap occurred. The car, their machine rammed was headed in the same direction, south, and was hurled against another machine immediately in front of it. No one in either of the other cars was injured, the local youths report.

Raymond and his companions were taken to the office of a Marienville physician for treatment of their injuries. Raymond later being removed to the hospital. The young man, whose neck has been encased in a cast and will require several weeks to heal, is an employee of the Knox glass plant in Marienville.

This is the second of a series of articles on hands played by Philadelphia experts, whom the bridge players of the country will compete against at the national tournament to be held in Philadelphia the week of Dec. 2.

BY WM. E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority
Charles J. Solomon, who will be chairman of the national tournament, is a lover of tournament bridge. Seldom does he fail to attend a tournament held within 100 miles of Philadelphia, and it would be strange indeed if, during the course of a tournament, he did not win at least one of the events.

In a recent championship event Solomon was playing against a strong pair. The opening club lead was won by declarer. Solomon (East) refused to put up the ace.

South then cashed the ace and king of hearts and ruffed a small heart. He led the five of diamonds from dummy, and again Solomon played low, allowing declarer's queen to win. The ten of hearts was led, West played the queen and dummy ruffed.

Now if Solomon overrudded with the jack, declarer would finesse him out of his king; so Solomon ruffed with the king of trumps, thereby marking West with the jack of trumps.

He then led a small trump. South won with the queen and returned a diamond. Solomon won with the ace and led another spade. Naturally the declarer thought he was going to drop the jack from the West hand and put on his ace. Thus Solomon made two trump tricks and his two aces, defeating the contract one trick.

Tom Harmon Sure To Retain All-America Rating This Season

New York, Oct. 30.—(T)—Tight defensive play last week stopped the spectacular football exploits of Jack Crain of Texas, Frank Reagan of Penn and Paul Christian of Missouri, but nothing short of a concrete wall, it appears, can halt Thomas Dudley Harmon of Michigan.

On the basis of his brilliant play not only against Penn last Saturday, but through the first month of the season, it is difficult to see how anything less serious than a broken leg could keep the Gary Thunderbolt out of the All-America backfield for the second successive year.

Against previously unbeaten Penn, Harmon scored one touchdown, passed for another, booted both extra points, gained around 150 yards from scrimmage and added another 50 yards or so on passes, outkicked Reagan by a wide margin and generally comported himself like the All-American he is.

Against Michigan's fine line play, Reagan never could get started, and even his kicking suffered as he sought desperately to angle the ball away from Harmon.

Christian, one of the 1939 season's biggest thrill-providers, had a bad day against Nebraska, per-

Bill Rice

Merle Graham brought this bureau a copy of the Toronto Star Weekly the other day, the publication containing an article of Bob Shawkey which will doubtless be of special interest to the many local friends of "Bob the Gob," former Yankee pitcher and manager, who was up in the big show for 15 years. Excerpts from the article, written by Britt Jessup, follow:

"Lean and tanned and youthful, despite his 50 years, you could put Bob Shawkey into a baseball uniform today and the former star of the Athletics and the Yankees would present the appearance of a perfect player. He is one former big leaguer that the years have not weighed heavily upon. Since his retirement from baseball, most of his life has been spent in the northern mining fields, and his activity has kept him looking younger than he actually is. At present he is working at his property, Shawkey Gold Mines, just a few miles from Val D'Or."

"His greatest thrill came from just being on hand for the very first World Series. It was in 1913, when Shawkey was a member of the Athletics for whom he won seven and lost five that year. Bob says it was really a thrill just to be there to see the first clash for the World Series crown. Among his pitching duels, he recalls one with Urban Shocker, then with the St. Louis Browns while Shawkey was with the Yankees. The New Yorkers had to win two out of three to nail the pennant, and Shawkey pitched the first and third games, winning both. Shocker, with whom he had been dueling all season, Shawkey pitched one of the few games in a World Series. It was in 1922 for the Yankees. The game went ten innings, during which Shawkey fanned four and walked two. He permitted eight hits."

"Like all old-timers of baseball, Shawkey is convinced that the present day ball players—particularly pitchers—are pampered too much. Of course, he realizes baseball has become big business, but just the same he can't help laughing when he reads about three days rest between games. In Shawkey's day you went to the mound two days in a row if necessary, and rarely got more than a day between games. And it didn't hurt the arms of veterans a bit. In fact, they seemed to thrive on it. Publicity and big salaries are partially to blame for the change, Shawkey believes. A player gets to believe he's so good that he refuses to do anything unless he is paid and wheedled. But it's still the best game in the world to Bob Shawkey, and he followed this year's World Series with his old interest."

Hunters Are Urged To Exercise Caution In Handling Their Guns

Harrisburg, Oct. 30.—(T)—Urging hunters to take care of their own lives and those of others when they go afield this season, the game commission issued a list of suggestions today with the advice: "Remember that the gun you carry can cause you a lot of joy or a lot of sorrow, depending upon how you use it."

Its first rule: "Remember, all guns are loaded until proven empty."

"The only safe gun is the gun safely pointed," the commission noted. "Cocked, unlocked guns are sometimes discharged by twigs striking the trigger. Unlocked guns with hammers left pressing in the primers, instead of resting at half-cocked position, are sometimes fired by any slight additional pressure on the hammers, by jarring the butts on the ground, or by falling."

"Never fumble with the trigger absent-mindedly. Persons who do so are fit subjects for mental institutions. Keep your safety locks on always until ready to fire."

The commission warned against gesticulating or pointing with the gun, and cautioned: "Keep snow, ice, water, mud, sticks, lumps of grease, cleaning patches, broken-off shell necks, bullet jackets, or other obstructions out of the barrel x x x."

"Keep your trigger away from coat buttons. Don't lean on your gun or rest the muzzle on your foot. A favorite target for some hunters seems to be their own feet."

"Never stand a loaded gun against a tree with smooth bark. Fit the front sight carefully into a crevice in the tree bark so it will stand securely."

"Never shoot cartridges or shells of a different calibre in your rifle or shotgun. Don't let anyone finger your gun. Never carry it loaded in an automobile, and report every drunk you see with a gun to the nearest game protector."

"When walking in single file be sure you point your gun away from the man in front of you. Never take a loaded gun into a hunting camp. Never load or unload your gun in a group or when someone is in front of you."

"Be careful where you walk so that you will not slip on ice, trip over a log, or dewberry vines. Don't pull a gun toward you by the barrel or let your dog climb over it."

Sports Round-up

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Oct. 30.—New Orleans is guessing it'll be the Texas Aggies vs. Tennessee in the Sugar Bowl. But they'd better get May. Bob Neyland to autograph that contract right quick. Always Bradley will reach down in that fat bow and draw Luke Sewell's number. Everybody here is glad Holy Cross spiked those reports Coach Joe Sheeketski won't be back. Physical Culturist Artie McGovern told one of the camp-bound New York regiments he would charge the boys a couple of hundred snappers for what the army will give them for nothing. Well, that's something. Non-inflation for the football oval championship. San Jose State, which plays eight games under the arcs this season.

Observation Ward

Well, Viti has made his exodus. (Which wasn't news to most of us). And on the left there forms a mob Of gent's who'd like to have his job. Harris, Sewell, and Peckinbaugh—

"It was Shawkey who made Montreal's re-entry into the International League so successful by pitching them to victory in the opening game at Montreal. Shawkey was born in Brookfield, Pennsylvania, on December 4, 1890. (Ed. note: Most of his younger life was spent in Nebraska, Forest county.) He broke into organized baseball with Har-

October 30, 1920.—The signing of Hughie Jennings to assist Manager McGraw in handling the Giants, predicted in New York baseball circles last week, was received with acclaim by the fans there today. McGraw, it is said, will sit on the bench and run the team as usual, with Jennings filling the role left vacant by Johnny Evers.

October 30, 1930.—Ray Collins, formerly of Warren, but for some time connected with an Erie boxing stable, is gaining quite a name for himself. In the main event on an Erie card last week, Ray made himself by scoring a t. k. o. over Frankie LaFay, of Troy, N. Y. The blond lightweight is now rated 18th best in his class in the country. Tonight Collins will meet Johnny Burba, Rochester Cossack, in a six-round headline bout at Bradford.

BOMBER STUMPING AS WILLKIE MAN

Pittsburgh, Oct. 30.—(P)—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis, campaigning for Wendell Willkie, said he'd rather train for a fight—

It's easier.

The 205-pound boxer said between street-corner speeches here yesterday:

"I never worked so hard for a fight than I am doing now, and am I tired?"

The Darling Jewelers took four points from the Smoke Shop last night and up its lead in the City League in five full games with the second place, Texas Lunch dropping four and being forced to share the runner-up position with the Busy Bee which dropped three to the Recreation Center . . . The latter held its place in fourth slot . . . In the other match the Vets took three from the 3-G Oils . . . Ot-Lynch's 255 was high game for the evening and Harold Bjers 599 was high total.

"Yump on the Yerks" is the Conewango Club slogan now that Duck Keglers have taken four points with Chick Young's team the latest victim . . . The captain took over the pacing duties himself with a 572 total, and Hank Fisher turned in 525 with a high game of 223 . . . The Yerks, incidentally, set new team game and total marks with 885 and 2569.

The new Avro "Manchester," twin-engined British bomber, weighs 30,000 pounds, has a span 90 to 95 feet, and a speed of about 325 miles an hour.

Testing teams in the league will be Tuesday, November 5, at which time there will be a meeting of managers.

The schedule will begin about Armistice Day.

The board also decided that "opportunity school" pupils are ineligible for P. I. A. A. competition under its scholarship code which specifies that regular courses be studied. This interpretation was made upon a request by Stapleton.

FIGHTS LAST NIGHT

By The Associated Press

New York—George Martin, 146½, Boston, outpointed Pedro Montanez, 145½, Puerto Rico, (8); Maxie Berger, 144½, Montreal, outpointed Billy Beauchamp, 146½, Jersey City (8).

White Plains, N. Y.—Pete De Ruzza, 146½, Mamaroneck, N. Y., outpointed Young Dick McCoy, 144, Detroit (8).

Scranton, Pa.—Holman Williams, 148½, Detroit, outpointed Eddie Dolan, 144½, Waterbury, Conn. (10).

The twin-engined bombers that are now the backbone of the British Royal Air Force are being re-engined with 2000 horsepower engines in place of the 1000 horsepower motors they now use.

The unofficial lightplane altitude record is 18,200 feet, recently established by Betsy Ross of Richmond, Pa.

The new Northrop N-3 patrol bomber is reported to be one of the heaviest armed single-engined planes in the world. The plane mounts six guns, including a 20 mm. cannon, and carries a bomb load of 2000 pounds. Maximum speed is 230 miles an hour.

It is reported that 100 weather experts will be trained by the Department of Commerce and the Civil Aeronautics Board to aid in the national defense program.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS & SOUNDS

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Lou Payne, widower of Mrs. Leslie Carter, was sitting in the back of a theater as a new movie scene rolled back the years for him. There on the screen was Miriam Hopkins, playing "The Lady With Red Hair," and there was Claude Rains, white-haired Belasco in reincarnation. And there also was Lou Payne, tall, considerably younger, in the person of Richard Ainley, new English actor.

It was one of the picture's final scenes. Mrs. Carter, after quarreling with Belasco, was rehearsing a new show without his guidance. Having seen her faltering efforts, Payne had gone to Belasco, asking that he return, and this was the impressive arrival at the theater—a joyous reunion, spotted immediately by Mrs. Carter's discovery that her husband had sent for Belasco.

Sitting with Payne, I couldn't help wondering aloud how a man felt seeing portions of his life reenacted for the camera before his very eyes. Lou, when he is not now, is an actor in his own right. Once, when he married Mrs. Carter, he was a Broadway star.

"It's strange," he agreed. "Sometimes it seems as if the years literally are rolling back. But this scene—is this fiction. Much of the picture is as it happened, but not all. Actually, Belasco and Mrs. Carter never did another play together although their friendship was restored."

I asked how he liked Ainley's performance of Lou Payne.

"Fine," he said, then chuckled, remembering a story. "Remind me of the time I saw Alf Hampton, the comedian, in a charity show burlesquing some of our contemporary hits. Alf did a take-off on Nat Goodwin, and one day Nat saw the malice. Afterward Alf asked Nat what he thought and Nat said, 'Well, all I can say is that one of us must be terrible!'"

BETWEEN "takes," Claude Rains is sitting alone on a camera case at the rear of the theater, wondering, he says, if they'll be through with him in time for his radio date with Shirley Temple. He is a Belasco who still looks like Rains for they have not altered the shape of his face or hidden him behind putty. Yet the effect is more of Belasco than of Rains. The famed Belasco actor worn by the great producer was, as he points out, not really such.

"No, I never saw Mrs. Carter," he says, "although my wife did once. She was a remarkable lady, from all I hear, and extremely theatrical. Everything she did was theatrical."

After chatting awhile Claude Rains suddenly is no longer with us. He is pacing up and down a few feet away and he is muttering, half aloud: "No! No! Not that way! Caroline, have you forgotten all I taught you? . . . No! No! Not that way, Caroline. . . etc. All by himself, oblivious to his surroundings, to us, to all but his lines.

Tanks for the Buggy Ride

fighting, evidently trimmed by a heavy censorship on both sides, Athens reported that the Italians were striking hard into the western sector of Greece's defenses in a drive apparently aimed at Ioannina (Janina) some 80 miles from the Greek-Albanian frontier.

The Greek High Command said briefly that "the situation remains unchanged" along the upper half of the battlefield, in western Macedonia, where Alexander the Great started his march to the conquest of ancient Persia.

The sinking of three merchant ships, totalling 18,400 tons, by a German warship "operating in overseas waters" was reported by the German High Command. The High Command said a submarine also sank a large armed merchant ship of 10,500 tons.

German air raiders continued to strike at England during the night, but London had long intervals of quiet before the assaults finally tapered off before dawn.

The British Air Ministry reported that despite adverse weather the Royal Air force again had "attacked a number of targets in Germany, including some in the Berlin area" overnight. The Nazis acknowledged British raiders had flown over northern Germany, but said none had reached Berlin.

YOUNG ROOSEVELT HAS ANSWER FOR HECKLERS

Minneapolis, Oct. 30—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., drew a capacity audience of 3,000 University of Minnesota students into Coffman memorial union yesterday in a wild and heckling affair.

The youthful Roosevelt, making a campaign talk for his father, declared "my old man is going to keep us out of war."

"Wilson said that 20 years ago," a student shouted.

"Can you believe Roosevelt or Willie?" Roosevelt shot back. Many shouted "Willkie" in reply and many shouted "Roosevelt."

Through the roars Roosevelt stood on the platform and smiled in high glee.

When he mentioned "in 1933 Hitler came into power," a heckler shouted, "so did Roosevelt."

A chant of "we want Willkie" broke out in roars.

"I want him, too," Roosevelt shouted. "I want him for president of Commonwealth and Southern."

The crowd roared.

At the last minute, Willkie added a few paragraphs to his speech to criticize the administration for having an ambassador on the job in only one major European capital, Moscow.

As president, he asserted, he himself would select for those positions only the "ablest and most devoted men" who would "spend their time wholeheartedly representing the interests of the United States."

He did not mention any envoys by name, but his talk came shortly after Joseph P. Kennedy, ambassador to Great Britain, made a radio speech in support of the president.

From Charleston, Willkie made an over-night trip to Clarksburg, W. Va., for a mid-morning speech. Other stops on today's itinerary were Grafton and Martinsburg, W. Va., and Cumberland.

He will make a major address tonight in Baltimore. Tomorrow he will visit Wilmington, Del., and then speak in Trenton, Elizabeth and New Brunswick, Plainsboro and Camden, N. J.

FALLS FROM TRUCK

Puri Sheldon, 51, of R. D. 2, Ashville, N. Y., is in the Warren General Hospital with a possible fracture of the right leg, sustained about noon today when he fell from a truck of the Pacific Transportation Lines of Buffalo, at the corner of Liberty street and Pennsylvania avenue. His condition is reported to be good.

Official of Commercial Airlines Co. Cites Need of Transport System

as actual fighting planes. Troops, arms and ammunition must be moved quickly, he said, and in defense of the western hemisphere the field of operations would be so large that the need of speed so great that "only planes would be efficient."

"Yet," he continued "there are today only 322 transport planes in use in the nation, although the government has 'on order' 700 transport planes for army use."

"If the government would aid the commercial airlines by turning over to them contracts to carry all first class mail on basis of over 300 miles, the airlines would be able to bring their fleets up to 10,000 planes, thus eliminating the need for government purchase of transport planes."

"The transport airlines of the nation could overnight switch their planes to government use for carrying troops to the Panama canal, go Alaska, to any section where they are needed."

He said transport planes would not be converted into fighter planes since the cost of conversion would be equal to that of building new ones.

General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, took about half an hour after the alarm had sounded. About 200 machine gun troops were summoned from Fort Myers and some 400 infantrymen from the Arlington cantonment.

Several Capsules Disappear

soon as the duplication had been discovered, it was used that they would revert to the previously assigned order numbers.

Pending their re-check officials were at a loss to understand what had become of the six missing numbered slips. So far as the keeping of the records was concerned, the task had been entrusted throughout to specially trained, skilled and trusted employees of a selective service system.

A large number of people, however, took part in the physical drawing of capsules from the drum jar. All who sought permission to help with the drawing were given an opportunity to do so, including messenger boys, newspaper reporters, tourists, large numbers of American Legionnaires, government clerks and others.

Once the missing six or eight numbers have been tracked down, officials decided to hold a "lottery" to determine in what order they shall fill the present number and the perfect 9,000th.

They suggested that possibly the missing numbers might have been caught in the sleeves of those who drew out capsules, that they may have fallen off the table on which the bowl rested, or that they might not even have been in the bowl at the beginning.

Brig. General Hershey rejected suggestions that souvenir hunters were responsible for the A. W. O. L. numbers.

The great lottery, which began yesterday with such patriotic solemnity and ceremony, reached its conclusion after long night and early morning hours of almost monotonous routine.

Behind the 12-hour timetable which optimists set for it, and took longer than the 16 hours and 20 minutes required for the first world war drawing, which contained more numbers.

As the store of bright blue, number-laden capsules dwindled in the big glass aquarium which first saw duty in the 1917 lottery, officials and unofficial calculations showed that holders of numbers drawn after the first 1,500 or 2,000 taken from the bowl would not be summoned before draft boards the first year.

The capital slept while the drawing went ahead all night in stately, brightly lighted Departmental auditorium—the only spot of brilliant light in the row of cold and darkened federal buildings along Constitution avenue.

By the time midnight arrived and the lottery moved into the morning hours of a new day, the crucial moment for most young men had passed, at least temporarily. More than enough numbers had then been drawn to meet the first year's quota of 800,000 men.

At midnight the dull routine of the draw was interrupted by a changing of the guard and the appearance of a new crew of selective service workers. The first capsule taken from the glass jar on Oct. 30 contained serial number 5672—the 5,601st number to be drawn.

Br. Clarence Dykstra said that it was unlikely that any draft registrant whose number had been drawn after the first 1,500 taken from the bowl would find himself in an army camp before next July 1.

ABOUT LIGHTNING

Lightning does not follow drafts unless the air stream is filled with smoke or vapor, in which case it would form a better conductor of electricity than the surrounding air.
